Chapman and Cutler Receives Recognition for Corporate Equality

The Human Rights Campaign has again named Chapman and Cutler one of the Best Places to Work in its annual Corporate Equality Index.

CHICAGO (December 8, 2011) – For the third year in a row, Chapman and Cutler received a 100 percent score on the Human Rights Campaign’s (HRC) Corporate Equality Index, earning the Firm a place among the HRC’s Best Places to Work.

The Corporate Equality Index rates businesses across the US according to their protections and benefits for lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) employees by examining corporate practices such as non-discrimination policies, diversity training, domestic partner benefits, availability of employee groups, and responsible advertising. In all categories, Chapman and Cutler received the highest rating possible.

“At Chapman and Cutler, we believe that diversity in all forms enhances our ability to provide creative, high quality solutions to the complex and sophisticated issues facing our clients,” explains Tim Mohan, Chief Executive Partner of Chapman and Cutler. “For this reason, we will always strive to foster an inclusive and cooperative work environment.”

The Firm has a tradition of supporting a fair and inclusive workplace. In 1998, Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley and Equality Illinois gave Chapman and Cutler a special commendation for providing insurance benefits for domestic partners and encouraging broader participation in civic and pro bono activities. Several Firm attorneys participate in programs with Lambda Legal, a national organization for gay men, lesbians, bisexuals, and transgender people. The firm’s internal LGBT Affinity Group monitors policies and helps implement Chapman and Cutler’s Diversity Action Plan. In recent years, attorneys have been recruited through OUTLaw Coalition Chicago, an organization of law students from six Chicagoland law schools, and the annual legal conference of the National Lesbian and Gay Law Association.
